HOLD PRESIDENT OF HOLBROOK BANK ON CRIMINAL COMPLAINT

(Special to The Republican)
HOLBROOK, Dec. 20.—L. M. Reynolds, president of the Holbrook State bank, is under arrest here on a criminal complaint charging him with feloniously opening the bank and receiving deposits after he knew the bank to be insolvent. His arrest followed closing of the bank's door a week ago for liquidation.

Reynolds, it is claimed, has issued a signed statement to the effect that all Liberty bonds and convertible paper, formerly held by the Holbrook bank, has been taken over by the First National bank of Albuquerque, N. M., leaving few assets to depositors in the Holbrook bank.

Judge Sapp, L. E. Carron, L. B.

Cadwell, J. M. Patterson and Charles Cooley have been appointed as a committee to probe into the true condition of the bank.

A representative of the state bank examiner is now examining the books of the institution. When his report is available, depositors will ask Judge Crosby of the Apache county superior court to appoint a receiver. The bank's shortage is unofficially placed at more than $100,000, or more than five times as much as its capitalization.

ENFORCING THE LAW IN YONKERS, N. Y.

Recently, in the city of Yonkers, New York, a place of nearly one hundred thousand people immediately adjoining New York City, a plan was formulated that is known as the Yonkers plan and is based on the idea that it is not the part of the citizens to see that the laws are enforced, but the part of the officials who are elected or appointed and paid to enforce those laws and who have sworn to do so.

Briefly, the Yonkers plan contemplates the contribution of a certain sum of money each year by citizens who believe in law enforcement, to be distributed by a competent man, for the securing of evidence of law violations, and particularly of violations of the prohibition law, and attend and similar criminality.

Contrary to the general course in the city and crime organization, the Yonkers plan does not contemplate any action before grand juries or in courts by the citizens who have the evidence. The plan contemplates the publication of this evidence, properly buttressed by facts and proof, and the public calling of official attention to it. No help will be given the officials. No evidence will be furnished them. There will be repeated and explicit publicity as to conditions and the assumption and claim that the officials can find out and stop and punish these law violations if they want to.

If they do not want to there are but two possible conclusions: The first is that the officials are incompetent and must be removed; the second is that if they are not incompetent they are corrupt and doubly must be removed. First investigation and then continued and insistent publicity is the basis of the Yonkers plan, and it is securing good results.

The prohibition question is a paramount question in this country. It is not settled yet in the minds of a great many Americans. It never will be settled until there is real enforcement of the law, to prove whether that law is good or bad. What has happened so far has proved nothing save that the moral fiber of the United States is not a tenth as tough as the people are fond of supposing. If the citizens want prohibition, they can have it only by enforcing the law and proving that the law is good. If they do not want it, the way out is to force the law which they claim is bad, and that enforcement, if the law is a bad one, will surely act to repeal the law. The matter is entirely in the hands of the people.—Samuel G. Blythe—in Saturday Evening Post.
